Market Summary

Summary

- The U.S. government shutdown halted the collection of key economic indicators, requiring the Federal Reserve (Fed) and the market to rely on survey-based anecdotal evidence and private data reports.
- The labor market continued to soften and the unemployment rate edged higher. Core inflation moved lower but remained above the Fed's 2% target. Gaps in data collection due to the government shutdown likely distorted the official data, though other available private sector data pointed to a slowdown in economic momentum.
- The Fed delivered two additional 25 basis point (bps) rate cuts in the quarter, lowering the federal funds target range to 3.50% to 3.75%. The median forecast from the Fed's December "dot plot" showed an additional 25 bps rate cut in both 2026 and 2027, but the wide dispersion in underlying projections underscores growing differences of opinion. Policymakers have acknowledged ongoing challenges to achieving their dual mandate of maximum employment and stable prices.

Economic Snapshot

- U.S. inflation decelerated modestly during the fourth quarter, though data collection issues and technical adjustments caused by the government shutdown may have biased the data lower. Headline CPI fell to 2.7% year-over-year and core CPI (ex food and energy) fell to 2.6% year-over-year. Fed Chair Powell noted inflation excluding tariffs is near 2%, suggesting the Fed is looking through these effects.
- Labor markets continued to cool as net new job creation neared zero and the unemployment rate reached 4.5% in November before falling to 4.4% in December. However, layoffs remained low, suggesting employers are maintaining their "no hire, no fire" approach.
- The first estimate of third quarter real gross domestic product (GDP) showed the economy grew at an annualized pace of 4.3%, the fastest in two years. Growth was driven by strong consumer and business spending and steadier trade dynamics. While the data was from the third quarter, it showed the economy was on solid footing heading into the government shutdown.

Interest Rates

- The U.S. Treasury yield curve steepened further in Q4, led by a decline in short-term yields. Maturities less than six months fell 30-50 basis points as a result of Fed policy.

- The 3-month U.S. Treasury ended the quarter at 3.63%, 31 bps lower. The 2-year Treasuries fell by 14 bps to 3.47%, and the 5-year fell by 2 bps to 3.73%. The 10- and 30-year U.S. Treasury increased by 2 and 11 bps to 4.17% and 4.84%, respectively. Bond volatility has continued to fall significantly from April highs and has now reached the lowest levels in four years.
- Bond indexes generated positive total returns for the quarter. The ICE BofA 3-month, 2-year, 5-year, and 10-year U.S. Treasury indexes returned 0.97%, 1.09%, 0.93%, and 0.83% for the quarter, respectively.
- Calendar-year returns for longer-duration indices, except for the 30-year, outperformed shorter-duration indices in 2025. This marks the first time since 2020 that longer maturities have led annual performance. The ICE BofA 3-month, 2-year, 5-year and 10-year U.S. Treasury indexes returned +4.18%, +4.85%, +6.85% and +7.82%, respectively.

Sector Performance

- Excess returns were strong across investment-grade sectors as investor demand and strong fundamentals kept spreads near multi-year lows.
- Federal agency and supranational issuance remained limited, keeping spreads narrow and excess returns muted.
- Investment-grade (IG) corporate bonds generated modest positive excess returns as spreads were relatively stable over the quarter. Lower-quality led performance, supported by strong investor demand. Positive carry remained the primary driver of returns.
- Spreads on asset-backed securities widened marginally, keeping excess returns modest. Auto loan collateral marginally outperformed credit card receivables.
- Agency-backed mortgage-backed securities (MBS) generated solid excess returns in Q4 as lower volatility continues to serve as a tailwind to the sector. Longer-duration collateral (30-year) outperformed shorter-duration (15-year) mortgages. Agency-backed commercial MBS (CMBS) also generated positive excess returns for the quarter but continued to lag residential MBS.
- Short-term credit (commercial paper and negotiable bank CDs) yield spreads remained attractive over the quarter. Month-end funding pressures pushed repo rates above the upper bound of the federal funds rate, which created opportunities in overnight repo and floating rate securities.

Important Disclosures

This material is for general information purposes only and is not intended to provide specific advice or a specific recommendation, as it was prepared without regard to any specific objectives or financial circumstances.

PFMAM professionals have exercised reasonable professional care in the preparation of this performance report. Information in this report is obtained from sources external to PFMAM and is generally believed to be reliable and available to the public; however, we cannot guarantee its accuracy, completeness or suitability. We rely on the client's custodian for security holdings and market values. Transaction dates reported by the custodian may differ from money manager statements. While efforts are made to ensure the data contained herein is accurate and complete, we disclaim all responsibility for any errors that may occur. References to particular issuers are for illustrative purposes only and are not intended to be recommendations or advice regarding such issuers. Fixed income manager and index characteristics are gathered from external sources. When average credit quality is not available, it is estimated by taking the market value weights of individual credit tiers on the portion of the strategy rated by a NRSRO.

It is not possible to invest directly in an index. The index returns shown throughout this material do not represent the results of actual trading of investor assets. Third-party providers maintain the indices shown and calculate the index levels and performance shown or discussed. Index returns do not reflect payment of any sales charges or fees an investor would pay to purchase the securities they represent. The imposition of these fees and charges would cause investment performance to be lower than the performance shown.

The views expressed within this material constitute the perspective and judgment of PFMAM at the time of distribution and are subject to change. Any forecast, projection, or prediction of the market, the economy, economic trends, and equity or fixed-income markets are based upon certain assumptions and current opinion as of the date of issue and are also subject to change. Some, but not all assumptions are noted in the report. Assumptions may or may not be proven correct as actual events occur, and results may depend on events outside of your or our control. Changes in assumptions may have a material effect on results. Opinions and data presented are not necessarily indicative of future events or expected performance.
